Welcome, Graduate Students!

The RIT Libraries are comprised of:
- Wallace Library
- The Cary Collection (2nd floor)
- The RIT Archive Collections (3rd floor)

When classes are in session, Wallace Library is open more hours than any other service point on campus – 147 of the available 168 hours in a week.

Almost all resources are available online.

We are a team of qualified, dedicated professionals committed to providing the utmost in service and support to RIT faculty and students. We invite you to form a partnership with your college’s Library Liaison. Working hand-in-hand with the Library can be instrumental in making the most of your RIT experience!

Here is a brief summary of all of the services offered to graduate students by the library:

- Search SUMMON, the single search box that allows you to search many sources at once. Easily refine and limit searches to tailor your results.
- Use the Library's Online Catalog to see what we own and to check availability.
- Get immediate research assistance from the Library’s Live Reference (online chat) Service.
- Contact your Library Liaison directly via IM or email.
- Schedule a thesis/dissertation consultation with your Library Liaison to prepare you for your literature review.
- Visit the “Information & Services for Graduate Students” guide to learn how the Library can help you.
- Search librarian-created subject and course level guides containing resources specifically targeted to your discipline, course, or assignment.
- Place an Interlibrary Loan via IDS Express for materials we don’t own.
- Create perfect bibliographies using EndNote, Zotero, or Mendeley.
- Reserve Group Study Rooms of various sizes online.
- Check out laptops from the Circulation Desk.
- View your library account online. Renew your library materials or place a “hold” on a book that someone else has checked out.
- Search hundreds of electronic databases to find full-text articles using our Database Finder.
